PM interacts with Indian athletes who participated in Asian Games 2022

New Delhi (Agency): The Prime Minister, Narendra Modi addressed the contingent of Indian athletes who participated in the Asian Games 2022 at Major Dhyan Chand Stadium in New Delhi today. He also interacted with the athletes. India won 107 medals including 28 gold medals in the Asian Games 2022 making this the best performance in terms of the total number of medals won in the continental multi-sport event.

Addressing the contingent, the Prime Minister welcomed them on behalf of every citizen and congratulated them for their success. It is a pleasant coincidence, the Prime Minister recalled, that the inaugural edition of the Asian Games took place in this very stadium in 1951. The Prime Minister underlined that the courage and determination shown by the athletes have taken every nook and corner of the nation into a celebratory mood. Noting the labour put behind to achieve the target of 100 plus medals, the Prime Minister emphasized that the entire nation is experiencing a feeling of pride. He also congratulated the coaches and trainers and praised the physios and officials for their contributions. The Prime Minister bowed before the parents of all athletes and highlighted the contributions and sacrifices made by the families. "From the training ground to the podium, the journey is impossible without the support of the parents", the Prime Minister said.

Noting the highest-ever medal tally, the Prime Minister mentioned the highest-ever medals in shooting, archery, squash, rowing, women's boxing and the first Gold Medal in Women's and Men's cricket events, squash mixed doubles. He also underlined the significance of gaining medals in few events after a long time for example women's shot put (72 years), 4x4 100 meters (61 years), equestrian (41 years) and male badminton (40 years). "A wait of so many decades got over because of your efforts", the Prime Minister said.

The Prime Minister noted expanding canvas as India won medals in almost all games in which it participated. At least 20 events were there where India never had a podium finish. "You not just opened an account but blazed a trail that will inspire a generation of youth. It will go beyond the Asian Games and will give new confidence in our march towards the Olympics.", he added.

The Prime Minister expressed great pride in the contributions made by the women athletes and said that it highlights the capabilities of India's daughters. He informed that out of all the medals won, more than half were bagged by female athletes and it was the women's cricket team that began the string of successes. He mentioned that most medals were won by women in Boxing. He also applauded the women's athletics team for their impressive performances and said, "The daughters of India were not ready to settle for anything less than no. 1 in the track and field events", the Prime Minister said, "This is the spirit and power of new India." The Prime Minister underlined that the new India never stops quitting until the final whistle blows and the winners are decided. "The new India attempts to give its best presence of younger athletes among the medal winners. "This is the sign of a sporting nation. These new young winners will perform brilliantly for the country for a long time. The new thinking of young India is no longer satisfied with just good performance, rather it wants medals and wins" he said.

"For the nation, you are the GOAT – Greatest of All Time", the Prime Minister said noting the common lingo amongst the young generations. He said that the passion, dedication and childhood stories of the athletes are an inspiration for everyone. Underlining the impact that athletes have on the young generations, the Prime Minister stressed making good use of this positive energy by connecting with more youth. Recalling his suggestion for the athletes to visit schools and interact with children, the Prime Minister insisted the athletes raise awareness among the youth about the evils of drugs and how they can ruin careers and lives. He pointed out that the nation is fighting a decisive war on drugs and asked the athletes to always speak up about the evils of drugs and harmful medications whenever they get an opportunity. He urged them to come forward to strengthen the war against drugs and take on the mission of a drug-free India.

I'm for caste census 100 pc; it's like 'X-Ray' that will help decide future course of action: Rahul

New Delhi (Agency): Asserting that he is "100 per cent" in support of a caste census, Congress leader Rahul Gandhi has likened the exercise with an "X-Ray" and said it would give a clear picture of how many Dalits, tribals, OBCs and upper castes are there which in turn would help in deciding the future course of action.

Gandhi made the remarks on September 23 during his interaction with the students of the Maharani College in Jaipur, a video of which was released on his social media platforms on Tuesday.

Gandhi was received by the college principal. After his interaction with the students, the party leader rode pillion on a two-wheeler driven by a girl student amid security on the road outside the college.

In his interaction with the girls at the college, Gandhi talked about a host of issues, including the education system and the need for empowering women in the country, according to the video.

Asked about the caste census, Gandhi said, "The fact is that the lower caste communities, the OBCs, Dalits and tribals are not involved in the power structure. And no one knows how many OBCs are there, how many Dalits, tribals and upper castes are there."

"When you get hurt, the first thing that you get done is an X-Ray. Through an X-Ray we get to know if a bone is broken or not, where and how it is broken. So the caste census is an X-Ray which will tell us how many people are there, belonging to which community, what are they doing, what is their role in the power structure," the former Congress chief said. "It is just to see what is the status, after that we have to decide this is the status and this is what we have to do, I am for caste census, a 100 per cent," he said during the interaction at the college, according to the video released by the party.

Serious lapses by Oreva company led to Morbi bridge tragedy

SIT report in Gujarat High Court

Ahmedabad (Agency): There were "serious operational and technical lapses" on part of the Oreva company's management, which led to the collapse of a bridge in Gujarat's Morbi town last year, the Special Investigation Team said in its report submitted before the Gujarat High Court on Tuesday.

The lackadaisical approach on part of the management of Oreva company resulting in "one of the most severe and tragic human calamities" cannot be countenanced, the SIT said.

"For this, prima facie, the whole management of the company, including its managing director and two managers appear to be responsible," it said.

The British-era suspension bridge on the Machchhu river in Morbi collapsed on October 30 last year, killing 135 people and injuring 56 others.

The Morbi Nagarpalika gave the repair work of the bridge to Oreva company, which assigned it to a "non-competent agency," and the work was carried out "without consulting technical experts," the SIT said.

It also found several design faults in the bridge post-renovation works, contributing to its collapse.

The tragedy was "a result of lapses at administrative level to follow due procedure as per government norms, and also due to technical incompetency to repair the bridge and test it before opening it to the public," the SIT said in its report submitted before a division bench of Chief Justice Sunita Agarwal and Justice Aniruddha P Mayee, which is hearing a suo motu PIL on the tragedy.

"Various steps taken in carrying out the repair works of the bridge could have been avoided by various better steps had the company taken the help of a professional expert agency in the field," it said.

Even after the completion of the repairing work and before opening the bridge to the public at large, the Oreva company ought to have obtained its fitness report and consulted the municipality on that behalf, the SIT said in the report presented by Advocate General Kamal Trivedi before the court.

After the contract between the Oreva Group and Morbi municipality was renewed regarding maintenance and operation of the bridge, the company failed to take technical opinion of an expert agency or consult the civic body before giving the contract to one Dev Prakash Solutions to carry out major repair works, it said.

No restrictions were placed on the number of persons accessing the bridge at a given point of time or on sale of tickets, it further said.

NewsClick row: Purkayastha, Chakravarty sent to 10-day judicial custody

New Delhi (Agency): A Delhi court on Tuesday sent to 10-day judicial custody NewsClick founder Prabir Purkayastha and human resources department head Amit Chakravarty, arrested in a case lodged under anti-terrorism law UAPA over allegations that the news portal received money to spread pro-China propaganda.

The two were produced before Additional Sessions Judge Hardeep Kaur around 2:50 pm. The prosecution sought 10 days judicial custody for the duo, which was firmly opposed by Purkayastha's counsel, who asserted "prima facie" no case was made out against his client. "What terrorist act have I committed? How can I as a journalist commit such an act? What is the allegation in the FIR? That we have done critical reporting of (government's) Covid policy and farmers protest. Is that terrorism?" the lawyer said. The counsel said if there was even an iota of doubt about their guilt, sending them to judicial custody will be a "travesty of justice".

The counsel for Chakravarty argued he was not a journalist nor had he received any payment. "There is no such allegation that there is a map of India, published by newslick, that shows India without Kashmir and Arunachal Pradesh," he said. Countering the arguments, the Special Public Prosecutor (SPP) Atul Shrivastava said the case was at a stage when evidence was still being collected, and the prosecution has sought judicial custody for the accused in all "fairness". The Special Cell of Delhi Police had arrested Purkayastha and Chakravarty on October 3. Police also sealed NewsClick's office in Delhi. According to the FIR, a large amount of funds to the news portal came from China to "disrupt the sovereignty of India" and cause disaffection against the country.

It also alleged Purkayastha conspired with a group -- People's Alliance for Democracy and Secularism (PADS) -- to sabotage the electoral process during the 2019 Lok Sabha polls. Raids were conducted at 88 locations in Delhi and seven in other states on October 3 on the suspects named in the FIR and those that surfaced in the analysis of data, police said. Around 300 electronic gadgets were also seized from the offices of NewsClick and residences of the journalists who were examined.

Hamas launches fresh attack on Israel's Ashkelon city with rocket fire after warning residents to leave

New Delhi (Agency): Hamas is attacking the Israeli city of Ashkelon with rocket fire, the media reported. Earlier, the militant group warned civilians to leave within hours.

Ashkelon is around 15 km from Gaza. Hamas' armed wing spokesperson, Abu Ubaida, told residents of Israel's port of Ashkelon to leave the area by 5 pm (local time) without giving any further details. The Guardian reported. Hamas had threatened specifically to attack the Israeli city of Ashkelon in response to Israel's attacks on Gaza, the BBC reported. In a post on Telegram, Hamas said the residents of the city, just to the north of the Gaza Strip, have within hours to leave.

More than 1,000 people were killed in an attack by Hamas on Israel over the weekend, according to the Israeli Embassy in the US, CNN reported. The death toll now stands at 1,008, with at least 3,418 injured, the embassy said on 'X'. The Israel Defence Forces has said it "cannot confirm or deny" these reports from the embassy. An IDF spokesperson told CNN that it is aware of over 900 deaths. More than 4,500 rockets have already been fired from Gaza into Israel since Saturday, the Israeli military says. Two foreign workers have been killed and another seriously injured in a rocket attack in the Eskhol region that borders Gaza, Israel's emergency services have just said, the BBC reported.

Wake-up call

In the volatile landscape of the Israel-Palestine conflict, where tensions have persisted for decades, the weekend pre-dawn assault by Hamas took many by surprise. It was a meticulously planned operation, a stark reminder that the dynamics of this protracted conflict are far from predictable. For years, the conflict has followed a grim and repetitive pattern. Rocket attacks, retaliatory airstrikes and a cycle of violence that seemed unending. However, the audacity of Saturday's assault shook Israel to its core.

This was not merely another flare-up but a well-orchestrated military operation that blindsided Israel. Hamas, the Palestinian group controlling Gaza which has been declared a terrorist organisation by many countries, gave in the recent past an impression of being focused on economic stability. Israel was led to believe that Hamas was war-weary.

So much so that it even provided economic incentives to Gazan workers. This strategic misdirection allowed Hamas to prepare for a massive operation while maintaining an image of reluctance to engage in another confrontation. This deception is reminiscent of the surprise attacks in 1973 when Egypt and Syria caught Israel off guard. In many ways, it was Israel's "9/11," a reference made by Major Nir Dinar, spokesperson for the Israeli Defense Forces. What makes this assault noteworthy is that Hamas did not merely rely on conventional weaponry.

They employed a range of tactics, from rocket barrages to hang glider infiltrations, bulldozers, and motorbikes. Their audacity extended to abducting hostages from within Israeli territory. The Israeli intelligence failure reflects a complacency that had crept in as a result of a relatively quiet period and an erroneous belief that Hamas had shifted its focus away from confrontation.

This lapse allowed Hamas to exploit vulnerabilities, resulting in a catastrophic breach. The question now is what lessons can be drawn from this incident? First, it underscores Israel's need for vigilance in intelligence gathering, regardless of apparent lulls in hostilities.

The region's history has shown that periods of calm can quickly transform into crises. Secondly, it emphasises the importance of adapting to evolving tactics. Hamas has demonstrated that it is a resilient and adaptable adversary, willing to employ unconventional methods to achieve its goals. This adaptability requires a corresponding flexibility in counter-terrorism strategies.

Lastly, the incident challenges regional and international stakeholders to re-evaluate their approach to the Israel-Palestine conflict. Efforts to promote peace and stability in the region should not be derailed by such attacks. Instead, they should be redoubled, with a focus on addressing the root causes of the conflict and fostering dialogue between the parties involved. But in the maelstrom of reactions to the unprecedented attacks, certain facts must not be overlooked.

First, Hamas' military capabilities can no longer be overlooked. Second, the killings and abductions of civilians speak of brutality that has no place in military engagements. And finally, Israel must not seek only military solutions; in conjunction with its allies it must engage all those arraigned against it both militarily and diplomatically.

Biden's U-turn

In the face of growing immigration challenges and a border crisis that has strained American cities such as New York, President Joe Biden's decision to reverse his stance on the border wall and embrace measures previously championed by his predecessor, Donald Trump, is a step in the right direction. While it is important to acknowledge the complexities of the issue, it is equally important to recognise when a change in policy aligns with the realities on the ground. President Biden's initial campaign promise was a clear rejection of the border wall, a symbol of Mr Trump's divisive immigration policies. This pledge struck a chord with many Americans who yearned for a more compassionate approach.

However, as the surge in illegal border crossings reached alarming levels, the Biden administration was forced to confront the practical challenges of governing. The Rio Grande Valley, in particular, has seen over 2,45,000 illegal border crossings so far this year, a record high. These numbers cannot be ignored and the strain on cities like New York, where housing costs for new arrivals are projected to reach $12 billion over the next three years, is undeniable. It is in this context that President Biden's reversal on the border wall should be viewed. Utilising funds allocated during the Trump administration for border wall construction may be seen as a practical move to address a pressing issue without adding additional financial burden.

This approach acknowledges that governing involves making tough decisions based on the situation at hand rather than adhering rigidly to campaign promises. The decision to waive federal laws and environmental regulations to expedite construction is undoubtedly controversial. However, it reflects the urgency of the situation and the need for immediate action to prevent unlawful entries into the United States. Striking a balance between environmental concerns and border security is a challenge, and in this case, the priority seems to be on addressing the immediate crisis.

Mr Trump's swift criticism of President Biden's reversal, attributing the crisis to the repeal of his strict border policies, underscores the political theatre surrounding the immigration issue. While Mr Trump's policies were indeed aimed at deterring illegal immigration, they often faced criticism for their harshness. It is essential to recognise that the immigration challenge cannot be reduced to a single administration's policies. It is a complex issue with multiple contributing factors. President Biden's border wall reversal should be viewed in the context of the emerging crisis and the weight being felt by cities that have seen an influx.

While campaign promises are important, they must sometimes yield to the realities of governance. Mr Biden would like to believe acknowledging the need for border security measures in response to a surge in illegal crossings is not an abandonment of principles but a recognition of the changing landscape. Ultimately, a balanced approach that addresses the root causes of migration and fosters cooperation with neighbouring countries is needed to effectively address this complex issue.

A setback, but not a disaster in Maldives

The election of pro-China Progressive Alliance candidate, Mohamed Muizzu, as President in Maldives led to a buzz that China is in and India is out of the island nation.

HARSHA KAKKAR

The election of pro-China Progressive Alliance candidate, Mohamed Muizzu, as President in Maldives led to a buzz that China is in and India is out of the island nation. This is a replay of what transpired five years ago when Ibrahim Solih, who was pro-India defeated his pro-China rival and sitting president, Abdullah Yameen.

When Solih stood for elections in 2014, his promise to the people of Maldives was to repair ties with neighbours and adopt an 'India First' foreign policy. Muizzu fought his election on an 'India out' campaign.

Muizzu is an associate of former president Yameen Abdul Gayoom, who is currently undergoing a prison term of 11 years for corruption. The people of Maldives, a group of islands barely 70 nautical miles from Minicoy in Lakshadweep and around 300 nautical miles from India's west coast, located alongside major shipping routes, were made to believe that India is establishing a military base which could result in Maldives becoming an Indian colony.

This dominated the campaign rather than other pressing issues including the economy, climate change etc., which were more important. The reality is that there are a few dozen Indian 'unarmed' troops located in Maldives to assist in operations of a Dornier aircraft and a few helicopters gifted by the Indian government. What was, in addition, exploited was the agreement to 'develop, support, and maintain a Coast Guard harbour for Maldivian forces at Uthuru Thila Falhu.' This was sold to Maldivians as a permanent military base for India.

Another issue of contention was the construction of the National College of Policing and Enforcement. Rumours circulated that the construction was larger than required as it was meant to house Indians involved with the institute, thereby opening doors for pushing in immigrants.

In any small nation having a powerful neighbour, rumours on loss of sovereignty are always taken seriously. Yameen and his political associates also exploited religion, Maldives being a Muslim majority country, to push their anti-India agenda. The disruption of the Yoga-day event last year is a case in point.

Maldives has to balance India-China ties to gain the maximum from both nations. Yameen as the president promised to adopt an India first policy but implemented the reverse. His actions were reversed by Solih. Muizzu may have promised to evict Indian troops but their withdrawal could block the utilization of Indian air assets, which play a major role in disaster relief and casualty evacuation operations, in addition to monitoring the Maldives EEZ (Exclusive Economic Zone).

Their withdrawal will also impact the ongoing trilateral security cooperation of Male with Sri Lanka and India to protect its EEZ as also prevent piracy and illicit trafficking in its vicinity.

No matter who is the President, India has always been the first to support Maldives, whenever it faced a crisis. It came to its aid in the coup attempt in 1988, was the first to respond during the tsunami of 2004 and provided 30,000 measles vaccines to prevent a national outbreak in 2020. In 2014, under Yameen's presidency, Maldives faced its worst water crisis when fire erupted in its only water plant. It was Indian aircraft and naval ships which provided over 2,000 tonnes of water to Male. The Chinese response took several weeks. Indian supply of Covid vaccines enabled Maldives to vaccinate its tourism industry personnel enabling tourism to resume, safeguarding its economy. Indian tourists to Maldives are higher in numbers than from any other country.

When Yameen removed the Indian company GMR from constructing the Maldivian airport, his government was compelled to pay a sizeable compensation as per directions of a Singaporean arbitration court. Hence, Muizzu is unlikely to cancel any ongoing Indian projects. Maldivians are aware of the reality but politico-religious exploitation for power would continue to impact the India-China-Maldives relationship.

WOES NEXT DOOR

The victory of Mohamed Muizza in the presidential election in Maldives aroused considerable interest as well as concern in India because of his avowed pro-China policy.

RAJARAM PANDA

The victory of Mohamed Muizza in the presidential election in Maldives aroused considerable interest as well as concern in India because of his avowed pro-China policy. Though Prime Minister Narendra Modi congratulated Muizza who defeated incumbent Ibrahim Solih and expressed India's commitment to strengthen the time-tested India-Maldives relationship and enhance overall cooperation in the Indian Ocean region, the whispers of discomfort could not be overlooked.

Muizzu's Progressive Allince coalition was backed by China, signalling that Beijing now shall feel emboldened to spread its wings further in India's South Asian neighbourhood.

It seems to be like a revolving door as five years ago pro-India Ibrahim Solih had defeated Abdullah Yameen, whom Solih had put in jail on corruption charges.

Solih championed an India First policy during his tenure and shall remain as President until Muizzu's inauguration on 17 November.

Why does India attach so much interest on the developments in Maldives? In the geopolitical contestation, both India and China have vital interests for influence in this strategically located country.

While China sees Maldives as an important outpost to spread its sphere of influence, for India strengthening ties with Maldives by all means is because Maldives is literally located in its backyard and barely 70 nautical miles from Minicoy, an island in Lakshadweep and 300 nautical from India's west coast. It is also near the busy sea lanes through which commercial vessels ply the Indian Ocean.

Because of this, Maldives has attracted international attention as the importance of the Indian Ocean and the Indo-Pacific region is realised now more than ever before.

Over the years, India has invested heavily to strengthen ties with Maldives to put it in a win-win situation. India has contributed to the economic development of Maldives through various developmental projects. Its $500 million agreement for the Great Male Connectivity Project (GMCP) not only would boost Maldives' economic profile but would eclipse China's landmark Freedom Bridge an transform the local economy.

However, bilateral ties have to weather the storm of twin challenges: the major presence of Islamic radicalisation and China's increasing economic clout in the country. Muizzu's victory now puts India on notice as Maldives' policies are likely to see a major overhaul, many of which could be detrimental to India's interests.

India is now more apprehensive of China's growing influence in the traditionally India-aligned Maldives. Muizzu ran his campaign on the India Out slogan and accused his rival Solih of having sacrificed the island nation's sovereignty to New Delhi.

It is seen thus as a setback to India and a gain for China. Even India's significant financial support to another neighbouring nation, Sri Lanka, has not helped to stem China's spread of influence there. This needs review now, both in Sri Lanka and Maldives.

It is a fact that both India and China are jockeying for influence in the Indian Ocean. Political changes in these two neighbouring countries have therefore a strong bearing on how India chooses its policies.

It was expected that local issues of sustainable development, a rising ocean bed and the economy would be the determining factors in choosing a president in Maldives.

But all such considerations took the backseat during Solih's presidency as the opposition focused mainly on India's growing footprint. The India Out campaign gained currency quickly, leading to Solih's defeat. The India hate campaign gathered momentum when India at the request of Male had sent a Dornier aircraft to the government.

Under the agreement, India was to station 25 unarmed personnel to operate the aircraft and train Maldivian pilots and engineers to operate and maintain it.

The defence personnel were to be under the command of the Maldivians rush to India for medical treatment as also for higher education. Hence, no matter what is the leaning of the president, India cannot be ignored. PM Modi was the first to congratulate Muizzu on his election. He tweeted, 'India remains committed to strengthening the time-tested... bilateral relationship and enhancing our overall cooperation in the Indian Ocean Region.' The message was clear. India is willing to work with anyone in Maldives. Other messages, including those from Pakistan and China, followed.

The presence of Indian military personnel in Maldives is also a bargaining chip against China, hence despite all threats, removing them will have to be carefully considered. It would also antagonize other players in the region including France and the US. The US opened its embassy in the country in early September this year, based on Indian suggestions.

India will definitely find an increased Chinese presence in the country. It will have its work cut out to contain the Chinese influence on the island. It cannot afford a second Hambantota port in its vicinity. Any Chinese strategic gains will be exploited politically as was done in the last elections. Maldives elections are yet not over. Parliament elections are scheduled for April 2024 and city council elections thereafter. These will need to be observed.

Muizzu has not specifically mentioned being pro-China in any form however knowing the tilt of Yameen he is believed to be so, while claiming to be pro-Maldives. His campaign only mentioned wanting Indian armed forces out of Maldives, intending to exploit the fear of the big brother. These are early days yet. Which way would the tilt go is to be seen. China can never replace India in terms of proximity, commonness of culture or language. In case there is violence against Indians or Indian assets, support flowing from India could be stalled. Ties with India can never be replaced by China.

Historically, India managed to contain growing anti-India sentiment in Bangladesh during the premiership of Khalida Zia from 1991-96 and again from 2001-2006. It also managed to overcome multiple tenures of pro-China KP Sharma Oli in Nepal. It also endured the pro-China tilt of Mahinda Rajapaksa in Sri Lanka. Every time such a situation arises, India bides its time, continuing to provide support, employing its soft power and finally bouncing back, all the while keeping a close eye on developments, ensuring the situation does not cross a threshold. The same will be the case with Maldives.

Maldives defence force. The opposition projected this as compromising the island state's sovereignty.

The Solih government entered into another deal with India in the interest of the island nation's security. This too was opposed by the opposition. Under the Uthuru Thilafalhu (UTF) agreement, India was committed to help and maintain a coast guard harbour and dockyard in Maldives and provide professional, logistic and technical help for 15 years to Maldives to build and run it.

The opposition interpreted the agreement in a manner that Solih-led Maldivian Democratic Party government had agreed Indian military would be stationed and Indian vessels and aircraft would have unrestricted access to the UTF. Solih was accused of selling the island nation to Big Brother India. Even before assuming office on 17 November, Muizzu secured Yameen's transfer from jail to house arrest, thereby fulfilling his campaign promise.

The Solih government sentenced Yameen to a prison term for bribery and money laundering during his presidency from 2013 to 2018. The election result was virtually a referendum on which regional power - India or China - would have preponderant influence in the island nation.

Muizzu has promised to eject Indian troops from the Maldives and balance the country's trade relations, which, according to him, are heavily in India's favour. Muizzu argues that the citizens of the country are against any foreign military staying in Maldives.

This is a serious blow to India in the geopolitical rivalry with China in the Indian Ocean region.

After Muizzu announced that he would ask Indian military to leave once he takes office, India issued a clarification that its focus on Maldives was always been on capacity building and working together to address the shared challenges and priorities in the region.

This includes issues such as combating transnational crimes and humanitarian assistance and disaster relief.

During Solih's five-year term, many Chinese projects under the BRI were scrapped. The Free Trade Agreement between Maldives and China signed just before the 2018 elections was also scrapped. Muizzu is likely to revisit many of these. The India First policy of Solih is likely to be put to sleep or just remain on paper.

But international relations need not be seen always in terms of zero-sum games. Despite the fact that Muizzu is likely to lean more towards China, India is unlikely to be out from engaging with Maldives since it has invested heavily in the island nation.

Stated during a gathering at the Lok Bhavan

Lucknow (Agency): Yogi Adityanath, Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh, announced on Tuesday that his administration had employed over six lakh young people in the previous six years. Adityanath stated during a gathering at the Lok Bhavan to present employment letters to 393 homoeopathic pharmacists, "No one can keep Uttar Pradesh 'bimaru' if these youngsters work together with full dedication and energy. We shall create UP a capable and successful state if we work together."

"Earlier it used to take one-and-a-half to two years for the announcement of results by the UP Public Service Commission, but now the UP Subordinate Services Selection Commission is giving results (of examinations) in six to nine months in a fair and transparent manner," said the chief minister of the state. Adityanath also stated that the Global Inventors Summit was held in Uttar Pradesh in February 2023, and that the state has received investment bids worth Rs 38 lakh crore.

This would offer work for more than one crore young people, he said, adding that the state is already emerging as a hub for job creation. He stated that India has made tremendous development in the previous nine and a half years under Prime Minister Narendra Modi's leadership. As a result, India has made significant strides in the field of traditional medicine. "Ayurveda has always played a role in our lives. Since ancient times, yoga has been tied with Indian tradition. In villages, people have used homeopathy in many forms. However, when the Ministry of AYUSH was founded by merging Ayurveda, Yoga, Naturopathy, Siddha, and Homeopathy for the first time, it gave the traditional medicine of India a new identity." In reference to the COVID-19 epidemic, Adityanath stated that Ayush Kadha assisted people throughout the pandemic.

He stated that the AYUSH University is being formed in the state so that degree and certificate courses in various AYUSH fields can begin. The UP chief minister stated that formerly, pharmacists selected for Ayurveda were not granted government positions, but that this has since changed. According to Adityanath, AYUSH has the greatest potential for health tourism in India. "The world is looking in this direction right now. As a result, it is our job to give those visiting for health tourism with an international-level atmosphere," he stated. Delhi excise policy case: Court extends AAP MP Sanjay Singh's ED custody till October 13

New Delhi (Agency): A special court here on Tuesday extended till October 13 the ED custody of AAP leader Sanjay Singh, arrested in a money laundering case related to alleged irregularities in the scrapped Delhi excise policy. The Enforcement Directorate (ED) now has three more days to interrogate Singh, a Rajya Sabha MP, in custody.

Special Judge for ED cases MK Nagpal passed the order on an application moved by the anti-money laundering agency. The facts stated in the application filed by the ED and the case file produced before the court by the investigating officer reveal discovery of some fresh facts and recovery of some fresh digital evidence in a recent search conducted during the course of ongoing investigation, the judge noted.

He noted the ED's claim that the oral testimony of a witness revealed the role played by Singh in grant of some liquor licences in Punjab. A close associate of the accused told a witness about Singh's alleged involvement in award of liquor licences in Delhi for monetary consideration, the judge noted while extending his remand.

The judge, citing the ED's application, said Singh's associate has been summoned to join the investigation and both were required to be questioned with regard to the fresh evidence.

The court noted it is also being submitted that digital data of around 200 GB has been recovered during the course of fresh search which is yet to be analysed and the accused confronted with it.

"Therefore, in view of the above facts & circumstances and the submissions made, this court deems it necessary to extend the ED custody of accused for a further period of 3 days and he shall now be produced before this court from ED custody on October 13," the judge said.

However, the IO is being directed to ensure that all digital data is analysed without any further delay and the above task of interrogation and confrontation of the accused and also the examination of relevant witnesses shall be completed by then, the judge said.

He ordered that Singh's interrogation shall be conducted at a place having CCTV coverage and the ED will preserve the footage.

The ED's application prayed for extension of Singh's custody, which was to end on Tuesday, by 5 days, accusing him of non-cooperation. Senior Advocate Rebecca John, who represented Singh, claimed the ED had no ground for seeking extension of the AAP leader's custody in the case which was based on shifting statements of co-accused Amit Arora.

"I (Singh) will not plead guilty to your fanciful allegations," she told the court.

At the end of the arguments on extension of custody, Singh claimed before the judge that the ED tried to whisk him away from its office with "ulterior motive." "After you granted remand (to ED) on the last date of hearing, at 10 at night, I was told that I was being taken somewhere else. I asked why didn't they inform the court. They (ED officials) said there was some issue of chemical pesticide. They said they have got phone calls from people above. I told them I won't go outside without the court's order. They asked me to give that in writing.

"The next day they said the same thing. They had some ulterior motive. I asked what happens if I am killed in an encounter, who will be responsible? They said they will be responsible. What's the point of responsibility when I am dead. Again and again, I asked for court's order," Singh told the judge.

The judge asked the ED why it wanted a written statement from Singh about his reluctance to leave its office. The central agency rejected Singh's allegations of any wrongdoing.

"You should not take him away without the court's order," the judge said.

"Further, since the accused himself has also raised some concerns about his security in ED custody and hence, it is also being directed that the IO and other senior officers of the ED team investigating this case shall ensure the safety and security of accused in all respects, while he is in the ED custody in terms of this order of the court," the judge said in the order.

The court, meanwhile, directed Singh to not speak to media while being produced, saying it creates security problems. The judge also directed journalists not to ask him questions.

"It creates security problem," the judge said.

Addressing journalists on the court premises before production, Singh said, "Honest people are with us, dishonest with PM Modi." "Actions are being taken against those who are innocent and who are against them (BJP)," said Singh.
